Research Statement

I lead a research agenda on the Democratic and Responsible AI and Language Technologies: transparent and resource-efficient language technologies built for communities, public trust, and societal impact. The agenda has four pillars:

- AI for societal domains: Initiated and lead the TextDetox line on proactive harmful-content mitigation (15 languages, two CLEF shared tasks) and HatePRISM, linking regulation, platform policies, and NLP; now leading rigorous multi-turn evaluation of chatbots in high-risk societal domains.
- Inclusion of underrepresented languages: Massively multilingual benchmarks built with native speakers — BRIGHTER (28 languages, ACL 2025 Best Resource Paper), EmoBench-UA, PluraMath — and the first Ukrainian resources for toxicity, formality, and emotion detection.
- Efficient LLMs under resource constraints: Cross-lingual transfer, data-efficient learning, and the WMT shared task on LLMs with limited resources; now: cross-lingual transfer and distillation of reasoning.
- Explainable and transparent AI decisions: Explainable classification and detoxification, self-explaining models with human-readable rationales, and evaluating whether LLMs reason "for good".

I supervise Ph.D., M.Sc., and B.Sc. students whose theses led to papers at top NLP venues; lead the NLP for Positive Impact workshop, TextDetox shared task, and others; serve as ACL Rolling Review Area Chair; and co-organise the MunichNLP meetup. 50+ peer-reviewed papers; open models and datasets with over 3M downloads.
